AUC appoints Nicole Morter as the executive director of the Rates Division

The Alberta Utilities Commission (AUC) is pleased to announce that Nicole Morter has been appointed executive director of the Rates Division.

Nicole's work at the AUC has spanned performance-based regulation, electric and gas transmission rates, and Alberta Electric System Operator (AESO) tariff and rule applications.

In her new role, Nicole will oversee the division's work supporting the AUC's determination of just and reasonable rates and tariffs for regulated utility services. She will also lead efforts to modernize and streamline the AUC's rates determination processes to improve regulatory efficiency.

Before joining the AUC, Nicole spent 10 years in engineering and leadership roles at ENMAX Corporation. There she built experience in utility regulation, system planning and grid innovation, led work on electric vehicles and emerging technologies and supported regulatory applications before the AUC. She is a professional engineer and holds a bachelor of science degree with a major in electrical engineering from the University of Alberta.

Nicole's technical expertise and practical, collaborative leadership will support the AUC in delivering efficient and effective rate regulation for Albertans.
